The reason the entries this year are so poor in handwriting ~~as~~ is not entirely due to age as may be expected. The poor quality of paper necessitates a light pressure on the pen; this cramps my usual style.

MONDAY, JANUARY 1, 1945

1st
Day

Happy New Year

364 Days
to come

This is the day I finally decided to consider the northern subspecies Arizona E. blanchardi and the southern Arizona E. elegans. I wonder whether time will eventually show this to have been good judgment.

Spent nearly the entire day and evening recalculating the statistics of blanchardi and elegans because of the new allocations and arrangements.

Put in a long day and evening on the rattler baskets paper. Some letters; some bibliographic work. Went over some of the past letters.

Had a long talk with Mrs. Benchley this morning about the increased scope and size of the paper -- probably run at least 300 pages -- and she is still willing and anxious to publish it. Also talked over the press of clerical, stenographic, and copy work. She was quite willing to hire a girl to do it. All this is very encouraging indeed.

Van. A hyman called on the phone today.

Spent the day and evening on bibliographic work at the Medical library, main library, and at Chapman Grant's. The bibliographic work for this paper is certainly a long and major effort.

Only got 4 answers from the game warden series of inquiries. They are coming back much slower than the Forester series; evidently there will be a smaller proportion of returns.

King snake from San José B.C. ate a small Pacific Rattlesnake at the zoo. Full notes were made. Threw it up on the way home. Rattlesnake unhurt. Full notes were made

Some clerical work getting ready for a full day (I hope) tomorrow.

The returns from the game warden inquiry campaign continue to be low in number (total of less than 90 compared to over 1200 sent out) but are rather good as to quality. Most of them have already been copied by the girl at the zoo.

My postal card inquiries of foresters requesting additional information on particular points raised in their first answers have gone almost without replies.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 11, 1945

223rd
Day

142 Days
to come

Spent the morning checking the diaries and in other clerical and co-ordinating work on the rattler habits and life history papers.

Went to the zoo at 11 AM to talk over administration matters with Mrs. Benchley and to attend the meeting of the directors at noon.

After the meeting had another king snake eat a rattler. This took much longer than had been expected, 3 hours in fact. Among the witnesses were Chas. Lowe Jr., his wife, and Ensign Frierson, nephew of L.S. Frierson, Jr. Full notes have been filed elsewhere.

At Forward's for dinner and evening so not much done today.

Banner grade to Scissors Crossing.
Daylight drive 75 miles; only one
DOR seen

1 Red Racer M DOR Banner Brush.
Hung around Scissors Crossing waiting for it to get dark. It was quite comfortable 81° and breezy.

Then drove out beyond the Narrows and back. Not a snake was seen alive or dead.

Reached the Narrows at 8¹⁸ 82° ^{almost} dark
Turned back 7 miles east of the Narrows 8⁴⁵ 93° F.

Got 2 Coleonyx
